Constitutionality of Law Likely to Be Attacked-Court Review of Protests Also Planned.

That neither the temperance nor sa loon factions of the capital is pleased left last night. In many cases the liquor will be returned to the wholesale houses from which it was obtained. In others it will be disposed of at public and private sales. No liquor may be sold, however, except under permit issued by the hoard. with the findings of the excise board, announced yesterday, and that both are considering the advisability of appealing to the courts for a final adjustment of the District's liquor traffic became known last night. According to Mr. Hegarty, it has not been definitely determined to attack the validity of the law, but there is every prospect of developments along this line in the immediate future Directors of the Anti-Saloon League will meet tomorrow night to discuss the situation. One of the proposition: to be taken up by the league, it is stated, will be with reference to the advisability of endeavoring to obtain a court review of the records in certain cases in which licenses were granted As an auxiliary of the Anti-Saloon League, the East Washington Civic Association, which sought to have the excise board drive the saloon out of the fifth and ninth police precincts on the authoritative confirmation of the Capitol Hill, also may appeal to the prevailing impression in Berlin that courts, it is stated. In the event a court decision should be handed down upholding the league's contention as to the manner in which measurements should be made that organization undoubtedly will attempt to have annulled many of the licenses granted by the board. At tomorrow night's meeting of the directors of the Anti-Saloon League, A. E. Shoemaker, attorney for the organization, will make definite recommendations as to its future course. Speaking of the situation last night, he said:

"The league's object is to ultimately suppress the liquor traffic in the District. In the meantime it is its purpose as always to get the most possible good out of existing license laws. So it has been the aim of the league ever since the present law was enacted to get out of it as much as possible in the way of protection to the homes of the city, and be removing so far as has been in its power the temptation of the saloon, especially in residence sections.

streets have been turned into wholesale places which, according to many, are even more objectionable in a residence neighborhood than saloons. A wholesaler may sell to women; a bar may not. "Clubs and hotels located on non-business fronts have been granted licenses, we believe, in violation of the spirit and the letter of the law. Wholesale licenses have been granted in residence streets and in residence sections, contrary to the interpretation of the law by its friends, and hotels with less than fifty bedrooms have been granted licenses when the law provides that no license shall be issued to a hotel having less than fifty bedrooms for guests.

Much Rejoicing Also

Much Rejoicing Also.

While there is disappointment in the final results of the board's deliberations, there is great rejoicing in many loons therefrom. Especially is this true of suburban sections. Indeed, true of suburban sections. Indeed, anti-saloon people all over the District have reason to rejoice over the general results of the Jones-Works law, and by the end of another year its effect will be even more apparent. "The fight of the league to reduce the number of liquor establishments has not been directed against the men who hold licenses. The fight is against the traffic. In very few instances was the league called on to attack the licensee. The alm was to remove saloons principally by applying to them the provisions of the law."

There is every prospect that the asso-ciation will work in conjunction with ciation will work in conjunction with the Anti-Saloon League in whatever court action may be instituted. Mr. O'Brien said the members of his organization believe that representatives should be as amenable to a "dry" zone law as are residents in the navy yard and other prohibited territories, and that effort will be made to drive the saloon from the vicinity of the Caption.

On Way to Washington.

He is now on his way to Washington officially to sever his connection with the diplomatic service.

"I had to make the statement that I am charged with," continued Mr. Williams. "It was my last cry for freedom and justice for Albania before the native of the caption nams. "It was my last cry for freedom and justice for Albania before the nations of Europe began to fly at one another's throats. Albania, surrounded by six powers, was in the hands of usurpers who had no business there, and who were setting one religion against another.

Many Will Not Protest.

Many rejected applicants, it is learned. will accept the decision of the board without entering protest. According to Alexander H. Bell, who represented a large number of applicants, none of his clients who failed to obtain licenses will endeavor to have the action of the board set aside. Mr. Bell said that the task of the board had been a hard one, and that he had no criticism to make.

Because of the fact a number of establishments are located within 400 feet of a church or school the excise officials to Balkans will again become a seethfound it necessary to turn down many applicants who have been in business in the District for a number of years and whose records are of the best.

The new license year began at 12 o'clock last night with a total of 297 retail and ninety-three wholesale liquor establishments authorized to do business. When the office of the District license clerk closed at 3:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon licenses had been issued to 263 retailers and seventy-four wholesalers. The office will be open from 2 until 3 o'clock this afternoon for the purpose of issuing the remaining licenses granted by the board. Hallowen was not the joyful occasion in scores of Washington saloons last night that it has been in previous years. While many disappointed proprietors sought to make the best of the situation, gloom pervaded the old establishments which had come under the ban of the law. Old customers indulged in reminiscences as they took their last drinks over many a favorite bar.

A definite decision regarding the ministerial crisis awaits the return of King Victor Emmanuel, but the general opinion is that Premier Salandra's task will not be limited to the appointment of new ministers of the treasury and foreign affairs, the latter office made vacant by the death of Marquis Di San Kiuliano. It is argued that a ministry thus reformed would still lack homogeneity, the absence of which caused first the resignation on October 9 of Gen. Grandi as minister of war and then the resignation of Signor Rubini.

The belief is held here that the resignation of the entire cabinet is not far off and that the king will intrust Premier Salandra to organize a new ministry. In this way the premier would be free to select ministers of a mind to meet the present situation vith unanimity.

EL PASO, Tex., October 31 .- Leaders

The plan which would retire the two opposing leaders was drafted and adopted unanimously by a joint com mittee on civil and military matters, the members of which are the leader of both factions. It arranged that the provisional president, to be named later, should take oath of office before the assembled convention. The documen thanked Gen. Carranza and Gen. Villa for their revolutionary activity.

The proposition for the retireme of both leaders was made to the coof both leaders was made to the con-vention by Carranza himself, who in-sisted that unless Villa also retired he would refuse to step down from of-fice.

Later in the night the protocol came up before the assembled body and was passed by a vote of 112 to 17.

The plan of Aguascalientes differs widely from the many other revolutionary plans adopted at various times during Mexico's present day revolutionary period, in that it is more definite in the matter of arranging a provisional government and carrying out civil reforms. It places full power in visional government and carrying outcivil reforms. It places full power in the provisional president and the present body of chieftains, which will act in the capacity of a congress.

New Government Plan plan does not call for election until after the arrangement of civil reforms by this body. No time is set or the general elections. The plan in this regard says: "Said president will take oath before the assembled convention and arrange the program of government which will emanate from this arrangement along the best lines to realize in a pro-con stitutional period the social and political reforms needed by the counlitical reforms needed by the country."

This plan borders on the suggested commission form of government, since the provisional president would be acting as chairman of the convention.

Gen. Carranza was demoted to the position of general of division, which he held prior to the drafting of the Guadalupe plan which made him commander-in-chief of the constitutionalist army during its fight against the Huerta power.

All commanders, Gen. Villa included, were placed under the orders of the secretary of war who would be named under the new arrangement, although a previous clause clearly stated that both Carranza and Villa "would cease their present functions."

Gen. Funston's command has been reduced to about 6,000 men by expiration of enlistments. No recruits have been sent either for the army or marine companies ashore there since orders for the withdrawal of the force were issued. The order will not be carried out until guarantees are obtained from the government to which the city is restored.

State Department advices yesterlay

State Department advices yesterlay from Aguascallentes antedated the session in which both Carranza and Villa were reported to have been deposed by the Mexican national convention.

There were indications in the dispatches, however, that some of those delegates who originally were pro-Carranza and had shown a tendency to side with the Villa supporters were swinging back to their first alliance.

The convention seemed more evenly balanced than before as between the Villa and Carranza factions. Villa supporters, however, claimed they had balanced than before as between the Villa and Carranza factions. Villa supporters, however, claimed they had a working majority which would be further increased when Carranza's resignation was acted upon.

The gunning season will open November 1 in Flauquier, Westmoreland, Northumberland, Richmond and Lancaster counties, Va. The nearby counties of Loudoun and Fair ax will not permit shooting until November 1. That date has been fixed by the board of supervisors of King George county. Experienced gunners report that quall in this section are likely to be small and not fat at this season. A sportsman will not kill small birds; if let alone they will be worth killing later in the season.

Good bird dogs are in great demand. There are fewer good hunting dogs in this city this year than usual. Many anxious inquiries are being made by hunters who would borrow them for a hunting trip.

November 1 is the date fixed for open-
